

Charlie Yescott by Jerry LeVasseur

Charlie Yescott passed away in April 2013 from cancer. Rosalie , his wife, said he never complained of his hurts during the last months and passed with class with him saying it was time to go to Jesus. Charlie was a religious man demonstrating this in his daily life.

We will miss Charlie as an outstanding runner and friend of the sport. He and I would have great battles but he always came out first. One of his passions was running the Lake Winnepausakee relay. He brought the team to victory several times running his favorite leg, the hilly last 4 miles, always smiling when he crossed the finish line greeted by his teammates.

“Rosalie Thank you for sharing the sad but wonderful story of Charlie's last few years. He was a man of God and a very caring person. It was so much fun competing with him. The last time I saw him was at the Lake Winne Relay. He loved doing that race especially the last leg being welcomed across the finish line by his team. If we do the race again it will not be the same. Charlie's approach toward death should be a lesson to us all.”
